Dear Congressman Mack:

I am a year round resident of Sarasota, having moved recently from Virginia. On April 12, 1988, the enclosed article (notice) appeared in the Wall Street Journal. I would like to have more information as I may indeed be eligible for the annuity to which it refers.

I am hoping that you can assist me in this matter. I have no idea whom I could contact to receive additional information other than the Agency itself, and I am sure that at best, this would be a frustrating procedure.

I would be most grateful for any help that you are able to provide.

Most sincerely,

boom-or-bust pattern.

Companies should smooth the employment cycle by subcontracting more work during peak demand, he says.

THE CHECKOFF: "Terminal operator" is one company's job title for a mortician, Personnel Journal says. Those must have been trying years. The CIA runs an ad telling former spouses divorced from agency personnel before 1982 that they may be eligible for lifetime annuities.
